City Will Not Haul Prunings

City Secretary Dudley Bayne announced this week that the city cannot be responsible for hauling away limbs pruned from trees in the city.

"Various persons engaged in the business of tree pruning or trimming tend to leave the impression that the city will haul off the limbs and trees," Bayne said.

"The city does make a charge for garbage pickup, but it is not possible for the city crews to haul off limbs or trees as the case may be.

"Small amounts of brush or trash will be picked up by the city," he added.

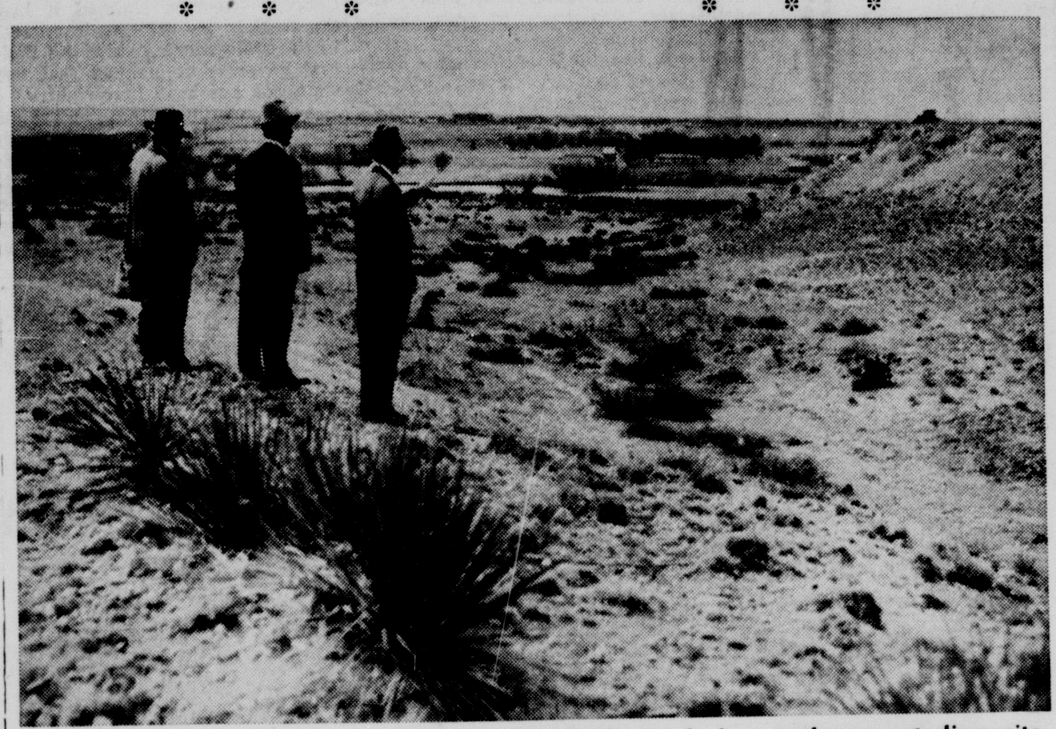
New Stadium Located



Dr. James P. Cornette, Henry Sears and Macon O. Carder look over the new stadium site.

West Texas State will have a natural horseshoe bowl for its new 20,000-seat football stadium.

That's the tentative plan announced by President James P. Cornette, who said the new stadium will be constructed in 1958.

The proposed site is located in the canyons of the college farm two miles north of the campus. It is about 450 feet east of the "Canyon hill" on the Amarillo-Canyon highway and would be adjacent to the new expressway.

Convenience to Amarillo and the "ready-made" bowl are the greatest advantages offered by the tentative site. The location was chosen now, to aid state highway engineers in planning easy access to the stadium from the expressway.

Traffic at the proposed location would be easily handled, and ample parking facilities could be developed. Utilizing the bowl would lessen construction costs.

Tentative plans call for the east-west stands of the stadium each to seat 10,000 spectators. The north end will be available for an additional 10,000, giving the new stadium a potential seating capacity of 30,000.

South end of the stadium will remain open, giving fans an expansive view of the college farm, its lake, large trees, pastures and stream. Dressing rooms and concession stands will be low structures, located on the south end.

Present Buffalo Stadium is located in the center of the college campus and seats only 7,500.

Runners Pound Home

Hereford's Wayne Smith sprints in ahead of Canyon's Charles Neblett at the finish of the 440-yard relay in a dual meet in Canyon Saturday. Canyon won the meet by a score of 67-61, taking four out of five firsts in field events and five of nine in track. The Canyon team will enter the Longhorn Relays in Lockney Saturday.

Personality King and Queen To Be Crowned During Pageant at College

More than 50 young couples representing high schools throughout the Panhandle are expected here at West Texas State College Friday for the annual Plains Personality Pageant.

Sponsored by the WT Student Senate, the pageant is probably the top social event of the year on campus. Events start with registration in the Student Union Building at 12:30 p. m. and are climaxed by the pageant presentation dance, starting at 8 p. m.

West Texas State's student body already has nominated six men and six coeds for King and Queen of Personality, and all candidates will form the royal court. Identity of the two winners, already chosen in a campus election, will be revealed at the pageant.

Candidates for queen are Barbara Beck, Amarillo; Fredie Jo Carter, Sunray; Carolyn Christian, Claude; Floella Cubine, McLean; Shirley Davis, Pecos; and Margaret Houston, Amarillo; King candidates are Dean Kelley, Amarillo; Buddy Knox, Canyon; Bill Hunter, Dalhart; Eddie Reeves, McLean; Allen Simpson, Borger; and Phillip Wright, Borger.

At 1:30 p. m., visitors will be entertained in the Branding Iron Theatre with a one-act play and other entertainment. A Coke party is slated at 3 p. m., and rehearsal for the pageant will be held at 3:45 p. m.

High school representatives will be honored at a banquet at 5:30, and the pageant and dance starts at 8 p. m.

Presentation of visiting high school representatives and of the WT Personality royalty will be made about 9 p. m. Dr. Wendell Cain, assistant professor of speech, will be master of ceremonies.

Dancing in the college cafeteria will be to the music of The Collegians, campus dance band. For visitors and students who do not dance, special entertainment is planned in the Student Union Building by a student organization, the Advisory Council.

Red Cross Sets $3150 Budget

The Red Cross 1956 budget for Canyon is $3150 it was announced this week as a campaign to raise funds began.

Grady Persons is finance chairman for the coming year and is attempting to get all employes of all firms in town to subscribe 100 per cent to the Red Cross.

Those who wish to contribute to the Red Cross may leave the money at the City Hall or the First National Bank.

Officers of the Red Cross hope that Canyon citizens will give larger amounts than they did last year. The officers believe many persons will need to give more than $1 to meet the budget.

Your Guess Much Better Than Ours

What do you think about this year's political situation? Who are your favorite candidates?

Clip out the blank, check your preferences, add any comment you wish and send it back. We will tabulate your answers and let you know how the people of the county are thinking politically.

One of the most versatile bands in the world, the aggregation resolves itself into a 100-piece marching band, a 90-piece symphony orchestra, an 85-piece symphonic band, a 25-piece glee club (the Singing Sergeants), five dance bands (including the Airmen of Note and the Crew Chiefs), and numerous chamber and instrumental groups.

He not only selects their leaders, assigns personnel, conducts career programs and makes field inspections, but directs every phase of music in the Air Force.

Four Witnesses Testify During First Day of Taylor Hearing

With the district courtroom half-filled with spectators, testimony in the condemnation hearing against Taylor and Sons Country Store was begun yesterday before the three-man special commission.

The commission will determine the amount of damage due Taylor and Sons from Randall County for a portion of the land needed for the Canyon-Amarillo expressway. Members of the commission are B. R. Jones, Amarillo, Newton Crain and Walter Graham, both of Canyon.

Testimony by Lanham Nelson and A. C. Youngblood of Big States Auction Associates, right-of-way agents for the county, showed that the Taylor property needed for the expressway was appraised by Nelson and Youngblood as being worth $42,919.50.

"It looks like every real estate man in the country showed up," an observer noted when looking over the court room.

When testimony began Tuesday morning, State Highway Engineer Byron Reese, who is in charge of the Canyon-Amarillo expressway planning and construction, explained several maps that showed how the traffic interchange just north of Canyon and the expressway in front of the Taylor property will look.

Reese pointed out a service road to be built on the east side of the expressway, and a "ramp" which connects east-bound traffic on the Hereford Highway with the expressway.

He said he would not have planned building the frontal road at this time if Taylor and Sons had not been located there. He said he had received a final okay on the ramp Monday from the Austin office.

Reese said he added the ramp after learning that West Texas State College plans to build a stadium north of Canyon near Canyon Hill. "We heard about the stadium about the same way you folks did," he said.

Reese was on the witness stand for almost two hours and was questioned extensively about Highway Department plans by James G. Lumpkin, special condemnation counsel for the county, A. W. Lair, criminal district attorney, and by counsel for Taylor and Sons, Cleo Clayton Sr. and Cleo Clayton Jr.

Questioned as to how a person traveling from the north might gain access to Taylor and Sons, Reese said the person might cross the northbound traffic lane on a cross-over about a half-mile north and use the service road or might go to the grade separation at the intersection of the Hereford Highway and the expressway and return to the service road. He said the latter method would take about a half-mile of traveling.

Reese said the crossover north of Taylor and Sons would be located just north of Palo Duro Creek. He said the crossover was originally planned to be located about a quarter-mile north of Taylor and Sons, but the announcement of the stadium caused a change in plans.

He showed a map which indicates a grade separation intersection at Canyon Hill to take care of traffic to-and-from the proposed stadium. The cross-over near Palo Duro Creek was changed to be about halfway between the stadium grade-separation and the highway intersection.

Reese said he hoped there would be no further changes in the plans, but added that the Highway Department in Austin and the Federal Bureau of Public Roads might make other changes.

A tract of almost two acres is needed from Taylor and Sons for the right of way. Located on the tract are the main store, the south lumber shed, a portion of the north lumber shed and three smaller buildings. The tract of land is about 180 feet wide on the south end and 75 on the north.

Both Nelson and Youngblood said they valued the land at $500 an acre and appraised the amount needed at $957.50.

They appraised the main store building as worth $28,200. The south lumber shed was evaluated at $2112 and the north shed at $3600. Two of the other three buildings, which are 20 by 28 feet, were valued at $1000 each, and the third, 16 by 28, at $800.

In his testimony, Youngblood said he considered the improvements on all the Taylor property, including that which is not needed for the expressway, are worth $112,152. That which will not be taken by the county is worth $68,992, he said.

During intensive questioning by Clayton, Youngblood said he did not consider the Taylor volume of business in making his appraisal. He said he did not take into consideration any profits made at the location in previous years. "I had no way of knowing what that might be," he said.

Asked if he thought the expressway would raise the value of the Taylor business or lower it, Youngblood said, "In my opinion (the expressway) would cause little change in the value of the property."

He said he considered that Taylor and Sons were putting the land to the "highest and best" use possible.

Another highway engineer, Lyndal Carter, showed the commissioners a contour map at the intersection and pointed out the drainage system.

Asked about comparative elevations between the Taylor property which will be left and the expressway and frontal road, Carter said they would be about the same level all the way.

He said that the frontal road must follow the grade of the adjoining land. "If Mr. Taylor wants to change the grade of his land, we'll change the grade of the road," he said.

He said the expressway would be eight inches above the Taylor grade at the south end and three feet below at the north end. Carter said a person traveling on the expressway or on the Hereford Highway would be able to see the Taylor business property.

Nelson was the last witness of the afternoon, and his testimony was interrupted when the hearing recessed. He was to resume the stand this morning.

Before the hearing began, Lumpkin said the proceedings would take more than one day. At the end of Tuesday's session, observers estimated the hearing would not be concluded until Thursday.

Next time you plan to go shopping in Amarillo, it might be a good idea to drop by the bank and pick up a double handful of nickels. From what I read, it'll take that many to park long enough to give you a chance to run into one store. You always hear that time is valuable, and it dern sure is if you want to park in the downtown area in Amarillo.

. Some people in Amarillo seem to be taking the idea of annexing South Amarillo into Potter County seriously. Riley Troth tells how a man at an Air Force Reserve meeting last week asked for a show of hands of everyone from Randall County who would be willing to sign a petition to change the county line. Riley said no one held up his hand, and then a South Amarillo resident asked for a show of hands from those who would be willing to sign a petition for Randall County to annex Amarillo. He got a unanimous response.

You hear very little conversation about it, but there's plenty being written right along about the deficit of the Post Office Department.

The Houston Chronicle declares that the free franking privileges of government bureaus and agencies is the thing that raises the deficit, and makes postal service a hidden cost of government. The paper says that the agencies should be forced to pay postage like the taxpayers so the deficit would be erased. However, since the agencies would use tax money to pay the postage, I doubt if any money would be saved by that method.

The Industrial News Review says the Post Office Department should quit competing with private industry, ie, Railway Express, and get out of the parcel post business. "It is a service that has run up heavy deficits for the taxpayers over the years."

There's another theory running around that holds that the postal service should be free. Those who cotton to that theory ask if the postal service was founded to make money or provide service. They say that if it is to make money, raise the rates enough to do that. If it is to provide service, it should be like the weather bureau. "You don't have to put up three cents when you call the weather bureau to ask if the weather will be nice enough for a picnic tomorrow," one editorial writer said.

Another theory holds that the second, third and fourth class rates are too low and are allowing mail order houses and direct mail advertisers to flood postal patrons with unwanted mail.

Regardless of how you feel about it, the postal service is going to cost you money. If you want to restrict franking privileges, you'll pay the agencies for mailing rather than the Post Office.

If you want to cut out parcel post, you'll pay the extra cost to the Railway express. It costs so much to send a package, and if the Post Office doesn't charge that much, the extra will be chalked up as a deficit and paid with tax money. If you cut out parcel post, a private agency will charge enough to pay the cost of sending the package. You pay either way.

If you favor making the postal service free, you'll still have to put up enough tax money to provide the service.

If you want to raise the rates for second, third and fourth class mail, you'll just have to pay more for the thing you buy from mail order houses. Those who favor this method say that the government is subsidizing periodicals. But you will have to pay the extra money it costs one way or the other. It's something like death and taxes, both of which cost money.

Look out, Yankees, here I come again.

Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa tried to get an amendment in the farm bill last week that would provide both 90 per cent of parity for corn and the provisions of the soil bank.

When I heard it on the radio, I thought of a good solution for getting rid of any surplus of corn. If we could teach these people in the north to eat cornbread and hush puppies, to dip their fish in meal rather than flour, and to eat mush for breakfast occasionally, there'd be no more surplus of corn.

Mmmm. Just thinking of fresh blackeyed peas and hot, buttered cornbread makes me wish for summer. Man, that's eating.

Interposition Explained in Speech By Attorney General J. B. Shepperd

Recent discussions of the doctrine of "interposition" have, for the most part, been partisan and either supporting or denouncing the doctrine.

The following is an explanation of the doctrine gleaned from a speech by Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd and from a letter from Shepperd to Rep. J. Edgar Wilson.

Interposition is a method by which a state may appeal for a Constitutional amendment to settle a question of whether a state or the Federal government has a certain power. The method is given in Article V of the Constitution, but is not called interposition. It is given as one of two ways the Constitution may be amended.

As an instance of how it works, suppose the Federal government decides it has the right to regulate something which had previously been considered as coming under the jurisdiction of the individual states.

Thus, both the states and the Federal government believe that they have that power and the other does not.

Since Federal law over-rides state law, the only method of deciding which government has the power in question is an amendment to the Constitution.

Under the doctrine of interposition, a state legislature passes a resolution calling for a convention to propose an amendment to the Constitution and asks other state legislatures to pass similar resolutions.

If two-thirds of the state legislatures pass similar resolutions, a convention is called and an amendment agreed upon. The proposed amendment is then submitted back to the state legislatures for approval.

If three-fourths of the state legislatures approve the amendment, it becomes part of the Constitution.

If fewer than two-thirds of the states fail to pass resolutions calling for a convention, the fight for interposition on that issue dies. Or if three-fourths of the legislatures fail to approve the amendment proposed by a convention, the amendment dies.

The interposition method of amending the Constitution is not the only way an amendment can be made.

Congress, by two-thirds majority, may propose an amendment. It must be approved by three-fourths of the state legislature before it can take effect, also.

The doctrine of interposition was used successfully in 1790 when the State of Georgia objected to a claim judgment rendered against it by a Federal court in favor of a non-resident of Georgia. Georgia claimed it had the right to try suits against itself in the state courts, while the Federal government claimed that the state did not have that right.

As a result of the contest of which government had the power, the states adopted the 11th Amendment to the Constitution which provides that the states have the right to try law suits against the state in the state courts rather than in Federal courts.

Old-Fashioned Sugar Buns Are as Delicious as You Recall

BY DOROTHY MADDOX

OLD-FASHIONED sugar buns appeal to modern tastes, too. They are comforting, ample, and that topping of granulated sugar is something we all like. So try this recipe.

Orange Sugar Buns (Makes 12)

Two tablespoons granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ⅓ cup shortening, 2 eggs, slightly beaten; ⅓ cup milk, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Combine 2 tablespoons sugar with salt, flour and baking powder, and sift into bowl. Add shortening and cut in with pastry blender or two knives until a fine mixture the consistency of corn meal is formed.

Combine eggs and milk and add to sugar-flour mixture and mix lightly until all flour is moistened. Place on a well-floured board and roll into an 8x12-inch rectangle.

Mix 1 cup sugar with orange rind. Spread melted butter on dough, sprinkle with sugar. Roll crosswise and pinch together at edge.

Cut into 12 one-inch slices. Place on greased baking sheet or pan and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot.

Chocolate Souffle (6 servings)

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 squares (2 ounces) chocolate, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ⅔ cup sugar, 3 eggs, separated; ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Set a 9¾"x6¼"x2" ungreased casserole in pan of hot water in a slow oven (350 degrees F.).

Melt butter or margarine and chocolate over low heat, add flour, blend well and cook until bubbly.

Draw up a chair and sample these delicious orange sugar buns. You'll stay at table until the plate is empty.

Add milk all at once and ½ cup of the sugar. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened.

Add sauce to yolks, stirring constantly. Add salt to egg whites and beat to a coarse foam. Add vanilla, then remaining sugar in 1-tablespoon portions.

Continue beating until mixture is glossy and stiff. Pour yolk mixture gradually over egg whites, folding at the same time. Pour into hot casserole. Bake until puffy and firm and a knife inserted near center comes out clean (about 60 minutes).

State Capitol NEWS

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

Gov. Allan Shivers says he prefers his four-point "states rights" program to a fourth term as governor. Therefore he will not be a candidate for public office in 1956.

Thus he will bring to a close, at the end of this year, 20 active years as a public official. With him will go a record of never having been defeated in any election campaign.

But Shivers is not through . . . yet. He has a plan of action "to protect local authority from federal interference." It centers around interposition.

Four steps in his program include (1) a general discussion of interposition; (2) public expression for or against interposition — at precinct, county and state conventions; (3) if approved by party committees, the placing of an interposition proposition on the primary election ballot; and (4) if endorsed by voters, passing of a legislative resolution asking a U. S. Constitutional Amendment to strengthen and clarify local powers.

In announcing his decision not to run again, Shivers defended his administration against those who have attacked it because of veterans land and insurance upheavals.

Faults found in each are being quickly and efficiently corrected, he declared. He predicted that the veterans land program, when completed, will bring the state a $25,000,000 profit. As to insurance, he said that by May 31 the commission "will have cleaned out every unsound, insolvent or dishonest company that can be closed under the present stringent laws."

Interposition Reaction Varies

Reaction to Governor Shivers' proposed interposition resolution ran the gamut of yes, no and maybe.

Possibilities of a referendum on interposition, on the Democratic primary ballot this summer, now are under study by the party's legal committee. It will be taken up by the full executive committee probably about the middle of March.

Approving the plan were Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd, who demurred only on the "slowness;" Gubernatorial Candidate Reuben Senterfitt; and Dallas members of the Democratic Executive Committee.

More time to study the idea was asked by Reps. J. W. Cooper Jr. and L. DeWitt Hale of Corpus Christi.

It's a "waste of time and energy" said Rep. Barefoot Sanders of Dallas. James P. Hart, a potential candidate for governor, called it "futile and dangerous."

Porter Predicts Victory

Jack Porter, spokesman for Texas' elated Republicans, predicted in Austin speeches that President Eisenhower will carry Texas again this year.

National Committeeman Porter said the Republicans also are hopeful of sending a man to the U. S. Senate if Price Daniel resigns to become governor.

His party does not expect to name a full slate of candidates. "But we have two prospects in sight as a nominee for governor," he said. "And GOP Congressman Bruce Alger of Dallas will be re-elected."

Republican state executive committee members meet in Austin on March 12 to decide whether the party will hold a primary this year. Site for the state convention May 22 will be named at this meeting.

Indictments Handed Out

A. B. Shoemake, head of US Trust and Guaranty Co. and its affiliates, who tried to kill himself Jan. 7, was indicted by a McLennan County grand jury. Indictments charged the sale of certified drafts, without a state license, after the new insurance securities law became effective.

The grand jury report was critical of the insurance commission.

Also indicted and charged with having made unlawful campaign expenditures back in 1954 was Vernon T. Sanford, general manager of the Texas Press Association. He was charged with placing a total of $76 worth of advertising in Waco newspapers in behalf of Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey.

Texas Election Laws prohibit an individual from spending more than $25 in behalf of or against any candidate, or contributing more than $100 to a candidate's campaign fund.

Sanford places ads for candidates and others, in Texas newspapers, as an agent of TPA. He states that he did not spend any of his own money, or any funds of the Texas Press Association in behalf of Ramsey or any other candidate.

Says TPA President Russell W. Bryant, publisher of the Italy News-Herald, "Charges that Mr. Sanford has violated the Texas election code are ridiculous and without foundation. The entire matter stems from the vindictiveness of a disgruntled, defeated candidate who cannot face the fact that the people of Texas believed him unfit to be lieutenant governor."

TPA directors, meeting in a special session, adopted a resolution expressing complete confidence in Sanford and commending him "for the manner in which he has and is executing the affairs of our association."

Short Snorts

Texas military district announces an increased number of beginning spaces in the Army Medical residency training program will be available July 1. Eligible are reserve Medical Corps officers not on active duty who have had six months or more duty in tactical units as medical corps officers.

Dr. Ralph T. Green, chairman of Baylor University's economics department, has been appointed executive director of the State Commission on Higher Education.

Deadline for 1956 auto inspections is April 15. Col. Homer Garrison, public safety director, says that 2,000,000 Texas auto owners have not yet taken their cars to licensed inspection stations for safety checks.

Pressure continues to mount urging Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd to remain in public office. Shepperd's mail has been exceptionally heavy. Latest newspaper to come out editorially for Shepperd is the Kilgore News Herald. The newspaper urged citizens to "insist that he continue his courageous and effective public service." Shepperd still is mum on his personal plans and many close friends say he is dropping out of public office.

Fish Men Shy Of New Potion

AUSTIN—The Chief Aquatic Biologist for the Game and Fish Commission said technicians are "going slow" about embracing some of the new poison creations for disposing of unwanted fish.

He said an example is a chemical called "toxaphene" which has been widely heralded as an improvement over the more commonly used rotenone for treating over populated fresh water lakes, streams and tanks.

The principal recommendation for toxaphene was that it killed everything in the water area treated at a much cheaper cost.

Now, Marion Toole, chief aquatic biologist, said reports indicate that the effect of the mixture might be lasting in some waters in Texas, thus making these locations unfit for fish for years to come.

This particular drug settles to the bottom of affected waters and if the lake water does not have chemicals present to neutralize the toxaphene, fish-killing silt will be circulated every time wind action stirs up the bottom of the treated place.

"Like many of the modern miracle drugs in common usage," he said, "they have been found to affect human beings in many ways differing from the original intention. Thus, we will have to be mighty cautious in adapting some new techniques in Texas."

The chief aquatic biologist went on to admonish Texans that "toxaphene should never be used without advice from one of our qualified aquatic biologists."

He warned that the chemical is so powerful that if used incorrectly it would kill human beings and could especially endanger domestic stock and wildlife.

REDDY'S Farm Report

FROM THE AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT SOUTHWESTERN PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY

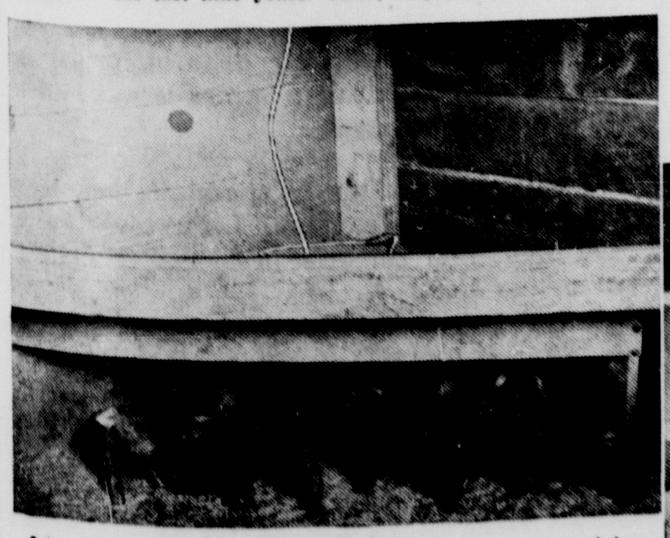
To survive, little pigs must have heat. Under natural conditions they depend on each other and good weather for their heat. Little pigs piling up creates a hazard, and the weather is unpredictable; also the mother sow often rolls over or lies down on the piglets crushing out their lives. The next best bet (safe, too) is the artificial heat created by electric energy.

While most pig raisers will use electric heat lamps, Panhandle Agricultural and Mechanical College at Goodwell, Oklahoma, has been using a manufactured brooder for the last nine years. This brooder utilizes a metal canopy, which might also be constructed of plywood, under the roof of which is mounted a 115 watt electric heating element coupled with a wafer thermostat. In addition a small lamp bulb is attached which serves to attract the little pigs to the heat source.

Professor Milton England, who raises the college's pork supply, has high praise for electric pig brooders, and he should know for he supplies the college cafeteria with about 1200 pounds of pork per week. Along with other livestock, the professor has in his care thirty-five head of brooding sows for 1956.

At current feed prices Professor England calculated that a baby pig is worth about $10.00 at weaning time. So obviously every pig that can be saved to go to market is a ten dollar bill in the seller's pocket. Conversely, every baby pig that dies is a ten dollar loss. A few cents worth of electricity can prevent this loss.

While the professor has had good results from the pig brooders using the electric heating elements, he expresses the opinion that heat lamps would do the same job. The main thing is to give your baby pigs the warmth they need at birth continuing until they are large enough to withstand the cold. One sure thing, there's no chance of electric heat rolling over on a baby pig and crushing out its life.



Baby pigs get the heat they need to survive in a safe dry corner of the pen, under the electric brooder.

Professor Milton England, Head of the Agriculture Department, Panhandle A & M College at Goodwell, Oklahoma, shows the working parts of a pig brooder used by the College Farm.

Mrs. Lowry's First House in Article

Mrs. R. D. Lowry's first home in the Panhandle is the subject of an article by Pollyanna Hughes in Trailer Life for March. The magazine is devoted to the trailer industry.

The article tells of Mr. and Mrs. Lowry's 14-foot long trailer that they lived in during the summer and early fall for three years after 1912.

QUITE CHILLY

A man appeared at the gate of a nudist colony, rang the bell and waited. From inside: "What do you want?"

"I want to join."

Are All Cold Remedies Alike?

No! For example, 666 is the wide-activity medicine, which combines 4 of the most effective, widely-prescribed drugs known, to relieve all cold miseries sooner. 666 is more potent and gives positive, dramatic, rapid relief from miseries of all kinds of colds. That's why 666 is unsurpassed in effectiveness. Try it.

No other cold remedy can match 666 liquid or 666 Cold Tablets. 666

NEWS LETTER

FROM CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS OF THE 18TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

Salk Polio Vaccine

On the 23rd and 24th of February a group of about 10 committee members of the Interstate Commerce Committee, including myself, went to Indianapolis, Ind., for an investigation and conference concerning the manufacture of Salk vaccine.

We visited the Eli Lilly Plant and went through the entire process from the bringing in of the five monkeys, the removal of the kidneys, the treatment of these kidneys for the growing of the live virus, the process used in developing the live virus, the inactivation of these virus and the final vaccine product that goes into the human body to guard against this crippling disease.

The many, many tests that are followed as safety measures from the very beginning of the production of the vaccine until the time that it is bottled, boxed and sealed for shipment to the various parts of the United States would lead one to believe that there is no possible way that there could be a slip-up.

However, there is a constant watch and every possible precaution is checked and double checked. Even with all of these safeguards, it can be expected that the vaccine will not be 100 per cent perfect in stopping polio.

No vaccine has ever been that perfect. However, the doctors at this plant assured us that, as vaccines go, this vaccine was just about as near perfect as it could be made. They feel that they have definitely proven that it is highly effective and will save many, many people years of untold misery.

The difficulty now lies in the fact that there has been some trouble being able to get enough of this vaccine to the public. We were assured, and I think this will be good news to many mothers, that they hoped to have a sufficient amount by June of this year to meet the demands so that those who want to be vaccinated can be.

This news was most encouraging to all of us, because we had feared that it would be, perhaps, another year before the 20 to 30 year age group could participate in this program.

The sad part about this particular mission was to see the hundreds of little monkeys in the cages that are waiting their turn to have their lives taken for the benefit of mankind.

The sadness on their faces seemed to say that they knew what their fate was, and I would not be telling the truth if I should say it did not touch my heart. There are only two kinds of monkeys that can be used in this process.

One comes from India and the other comes from the Philippines. They are both referred to as straight-tailed monkeys. One of the doctors pointed out that the monkeys with the curly tails cannot be used in this process because of some medical reason which I did not understand.

We were also given a complete briefing on the manufacture and production of antibiotics such as penicillin, streptomycin and the other wonder drugs of our time.

Since this trip I have been definitely assured about polio vaccine and am glad to pass on to you this reassurance, but to also warn that slip-ups in the future, as those experienced in the past, are possible.

However, they are not probable, because we have tried to add every possible test that can be devised to insure absolute safety in this vaccine.

United States Air Force Band

The United States Air Force Band will make two appearances in our district this month on their Southwest tour. It will be at Canyon on March 15, sponsored by the West Texas State College Band, and in Borger on March 18th, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

Earth satellites which the United States will launch during 1957 will be 30-inch metal spheres weighing about 21.5 pounds each. Scientific instruments will account for about half the weight of the tiny "moons."

Farm Records Save Money

COLLEGE STATION—Farm records have been referred to by a farm management specialist of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service as the eyes and ears of the farm business.

They reflect, said C. H. Bates, the specialist, how the business is doing and may prevent many costly management or expansion mistakes.

On the average farm the investment per worker totals about $15,000. Investments in land, machinery, livestock and other essentials needed for agricultural production makes the present day farmer a capitalist of considerable means.

His investments are often larger than those of many urban businesses. Our highly competitive commercial farming, said Bates, makes record keeping mandatory as a protection for our investments.

Too, records make the job of completing the yearly income tax report much simpler and can save money, expense items which are not recorded often are overlooked or forgotten at tax paying time and for every $5.00 item missed, the average taxpayer paid $1.25 in taxes he didn't owe, said Bates. Even the cost of a good farm record book is deductible as a legitimate operating expense.

Farm families, said the specialist, who have improved the efficiency of their farming operations have found records to be the key to their success. They have taken the guesswork out of their business.

Many types of record books are available but Bates called attention to the revised Texas Farm Record Book which is now available for a small change. This book is designed to aid farmers not only in keeping a complete record of the farm but also for making tax and social security reporting easier.

Local county extension agents can supply details on how and where the books may be obtained.

I GIVE YOU

TEXAS

By BOYCE HOUSE

One of the most scholarly editors I was ever associated with was on a small daily in West Texas. He was dreamy, nearly to the point of impracticality but almost anything to be found within the covers of serious books, he was acquainted with.

Among the many subjects of this work-a-day world with which he was unfamiliar was football. Our town's high school team played its greatest foe and I "covered" the game but the editor wrote the headline, "Victory Hides Her Face from Rivals." Which was a poetic way of saying that the score was 0-0.

A former governor, who had been removed from office, came to town campaigning. The editor himself wrote up the distinguished visitor's speech. The headline was "Jim Ferguson Says 14 Senators Lied to Him."

The basis of this headline was that the speaker, in the course of an hour's address, alluded briefly to his impeachment and asserted that 14 Senators had assured him that, if he called a special session, they would not impeach him.

Somewhat interesting, historically, but hardly of current news importance as the occurrence was a dozen years in the past.

But this scholarly editor's masterpiece in the way of a headline was one he placed over a news article telling of the finding by authorities of signs of a struggle and bloodstains (which could have been those of some animal) out in the country. The headline was: "Was Somebody Killed? If So, Who and Why?"

I can remember the first time I ever ate a filet mignon. It was at the Washington's birthday dinner of the American Legion in Ranger about 1929. I wasn't even sure that what the steak was wrapped with was supposed to be eaten.

Many years ago, when the automobile was just beginning to appear, it was known as a "horseless carriage." A circus came to our town and a sideshow proclaimed a "horseless carriage" was to be seen for a quarter. Many bought tickets and saw—a buggy to which a pair of mules were hitched!"

Income Tax Facts

Plan Now for Next Year's Tax

(This is one of a series of articles on federal income tax filing. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Accountants and the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.)

The previous articles in this series were intended to help you in preparing your tax return for 1955. This article deals with your taxes for 1956 and beyond.

When the times comes to make out your tax return for 1956 it will be too late to take advantage of some possible tax savings. Here are some possibilities for reducing your tax which you can't do anything about after the end of the tax year:

1. If you are providing nearly half the support of someone who might qualify as a dependent, consider providing more than half so you will be entitled to a $600 exemption. The extra amount you contribute may be less than the tax saving.
2. Remember that unless a dependent is under 19 or a student, you will lose the exemption if his income is $600 or more. Be sure to check the income of everyone you expect to claim as a dependent.
3. If you are planning to be married, a wedding before midnight Dec. 31, 1956, will give you the privilege of filing a joint return for 1956. This probably would result in substantial tax saving.
4. A baby born up to midnight Dec. 31 qualifies as an exemption for the full year.
5. If your medical expenses are likely to be over 3% of your income this year and you expect them to be less next year, pay as many medical bills as possible before the end of the year, up to the maximum allowable deduction. If you borrow to do this, remember that you can also deduct the interest.
6. If your medical expenses are over the maximum deduction, perhaps you can defer part of the payment until after the end of the year.
7. Borrowing to pay your taxes can sometimes let you take the deduction a year earlier.
8. If you sell your home at a profit, remember that you do not have to pay a capital gains tax if you pay more for a new home within a year than the price you get for the old one.
9. When investing money, remember that stock in a domestic corporation offers the possibility of dividend exclusion and credit.
10. If you sell securities or other "capital assets" at a profit, it is usually better to wait until you have held them at least six months so that the profit will be taxed at the capital gains rate instead of as ordinary income.
11. When buying bonds, consider not only the interest rate but the fact that interest on state and municipal bonds is exempt from federal income tax.

If any of these points is likely to make a substantial difference in your tax, it will probably pay you to discuss your problems with the Internal Revenue Service, or to seek professional tax advice. Anything you pay for assistance in preparing your tax return is deductible from your taxable income.

But beware of any "tax expert" who claims he can cut your tax below the amount you really owe. It's a good idea to pick someone who has had experience in dealing with the Revenue Service, just in case the government should raise some question about your return.

(Final article of the series.)

Richard Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Sanders, is listed on the fall semester College of Business Administration honor roll at the University of Texas.

TOUGH SITUATION

A man went to a physician, complaining of prolonged headaches. The doctor told him to stop smoking.

"I have never used tobacco in any form."

"Well, then, stop drinking."

"I am a total abstainer."

"Late hours, then, and fast women."

"I am always in bed by 9, I am a bachelor and live with my old maiden aunt. No, seriously, what caused my headaches?"

"I don't know," said the balked doctor, "I guess your halo's pinching."

How to make a horse sweat doesn't involve galloping him across those plains, pardner. We can now reveal that a Hollywood make-up artist uses a spray-on concoction of whipped cream and barley to give the pampered geegees a hard-working look.

Atoms Enter Insect War

COLLEGE STATION—The war on insects has come into the atomic age. An agriculture department official reports that atomic science is being used to counteract the ability insects have to develop resistance to poisonous insecticides.

Radioactive tracers reveal how some insects are able to consume poisons and change them into relatively harmless chemicals inside their bodies.

Entomologists say this will enable them to understand insects' biochemical defenses and find new, effective poisons to use against species that have become resistant to present insecticides.

Radiation has already been put to effective use in many areas, and has been used to make certain insects commit race suicide. Dr. H. L. Haller of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service, says the paths of insects, even those beneath the soil or under the bark of trees, can be followed with geiger counters.

Radioactive tracers help reveal the migratory and overwintering habits of insects and aid in making accurate population counts, essential in planning control measures.

This type of "tracing" also makes possible more efficient methods of applying insecticides and modes of penetration can be studied.

Insecticides can be traced as they are absorbed by plant materials, transfused into the tissues, and later transmitted to insects.

On the island of Curacao, in the Caribbean Sea, many thousands of laboratory-raised male screworm flies, made sterile by exposure to gamma rays from radioactive cobalt, were released to mate with the wild population.

Since the females only mate once, they were soon laying only non-fertile eggs. In short time the entire screworm population of the island had disappeared.

Governor Lausche of Ohio, a Democrat in his fifth term as governor, has announced he would seek the United States Senate seat held by George Bender, a Republican.

Prankster in Los Angeles is moving to another city. He's not appreciated. Poured bubble bath in a city fountain. Resultant cloud of froth caused no comment. Looked just like smog.

A certain senator proposed legislation that would permit the Treasury Department to accept donations marked for retiring the national debt. Taxpayers might be more interested in a fund for liquidating the senator.

"Want your clothes to look better? Then you need an ELECTRIC Clothes Dryer!"

says Mrs. W. H. Simpson, Jr.
715 W. MISSISSIPPI STREET
FLOYDADA, TEXAS

"Yes, clothes that are dried in an electric clothes dryer look much better than line-dried clothes because you eliminate clothespin corners." You do away with outside dirt and dust, too, and your clothes are soft and fluffy instead of being windblown or stiff as a board.

"We save a lot of money with our electric clothes dryer. For example, the children used to need several pairs of pajamas, where now two will do nicely." So many clothes can be worn again right after drying, without ironing, in many cases, and tests have shown that clothes will last as much as 50% longer when they are dried electrically.

"I really enjoy my electric washer and dryer, as well as a dependable supply of hot water from the electric water heater." Plan now to build an all-electric home laundry with a washer, clothes dryer, and electric water heater. You'll have better washes, and more time for your family, as Mrs. Simpson does.

County Obtains Hunsley Land; Adopts New Purchasing Plan

Negotiations were completed Monday for Randall County to purchase land needed for right of way from Arch Hunsley at a price of $35,000.

The land being purchased from Hunsley includes some 44 acres, a portion of which is along the Hereford Highway which is being acquired in case of future highway expansion.

Included in the price is $2,500 which will be paid to the owners of Young's Drive-In which is located on land leased from Hunsley.

The purchase was announced following an executive session of the commissioners court called at the request of Criminal Dist. Atty. A. W. Lair. Lair asked for an executive session during the regular meeting, and newspaper reporters were asked to leave the room.

The commission adopted a purchase plan proposed by County Auditor E. T. Cummings. The plan will allow Cummings and County Judge Roy Joe Stevens to make purchases of office supplies and equipment which amount to less than $150.

All purchases of supplies which cost more than $150 will be advertised for bids and the bids will be accepted or rejected by the commissioners court. The purchase plan provides that Cummings will take informal bids for all purchases less than $150.

Early in the regular meeting, Sid Carter appeared before the commission to submit an evaluation of $36,250 on his property which is needed for expressway right of way.

The commission had ordered a condemnation suit filed against Carter last Friday afternoon when Lanham Nelson and A. C. Youngblood had said Carter would not negotiate with them. They said they had appraised the land and buildings at $24,200 and had offered Carter up to $27,550.

The commission received the Carter estimate and told him that Nelson and Youngblood would be told to contact Carter again for further negotiations. However, they ordered that the legal proceedings of the suit be continued while negotiations go on.

A reading of the minutes of a special meeting March 2 showed that the county had entered into an agreement with Columbian Securities Corporation and Burt, Hamilton and Company for services in connection with issuing warrants for construction of a jail and converting the warrants to bonds at a later date. The average rate of interest on the bonds will be 2.69 per cent and the interest rate on the warrants will be 2.75 per cent.

Seven more expressway right of way negotiations were closed during a special meeting last Friday. Those approved by the commission were with Leo Koetting; William A. and Zelma Bumstead; Isabelle Dickinson; T. H. Callison; Roy H. Weightman and Clyde W. Warwick; and W. A. McCarty, E. O. Milburn, George H. Beverly, J. C. Christopher and James R. Christopher.

How's New England Radioman Can Tell

It was cold up in New Hampshire Sunday and there was plenty of snow on the ground. Police were having some trouble keeping the roads open, too.

There was first hand information here about the New Hampshire situation. It was gained in rather an odd manner, though.

Sheriff's Department Radio Dispatcher Joe Mack Hill was talking via radio with Deputy L. D. Caldwell. As they finished they heard someone talking with someone else, and they mentioned a strange call number.

The dispatcher on the radio in the Potter County sheriff's office asked where the strange number was located. Came the answer, "About two miles south of Lancaster."

"Lancaster where?" Amarillo shot back.

"Lancaster, New Hampshire," was the answer.

Caldwell decided to try talking with Lancaster on his car radio, which seldom carries more than 20 or 30 miles. He had no trouble and talked directly to cars around Lancaster. Manchester, N. H., chimed in, also.

They had enough time to find out about the weather conditions in New Hampshire and relay the same information about the sunny Panhandle. Then communications broke down, and everybody went back to work.

Mrs. Glenn Phillips of Darrouzett spent last Thursday night with her mother, Mrs. R. D. Lowry, and attended the teachers' meeting in Amarillo Friday.

J. N. Sublett of McLean visited his daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Berry, last week.

Section meetings, conducted by student members, will open at 10:30, and will deal with various phases of newspaper and yearbook production.

If you want to understand human nature, we've been told, go into newspaper work. Vanity, false pride, snobbery — whatever one's failing, it's sure to show up when publicity is in the wind.

Another profession where you evidently get to know people as they really are is in the medico's. For while seeming preoccupied with a knotty muscle in his patient's left forearm, he's probably finding out that she thinks her husband is having an affair. The left forearm may be reacting to the tension thus created.

A jeweler, of course, gets a pretty good insight into human nature — but he has a more limited sample to work from. He gets only the luxury lover — the woman who wants diamonds but can't afford 'em; the man who wants everyone to know he'll have only the best; the thrifty shopper whose husband could buy out the store.

But all in all, we believe the curio shop owner has got the best racket for studying personality. Recently we stopped with friends in such a shop, where inexpensive knickknacks and trinkets of a hundred different kinds were on display.

One woman made straight for some pottery that matched her own — the practical type who had little shopping time at home. Another selected some miniature animals in china and bone — she was building them into delicate baubles made from hollowed-out eggshells — a woman with patience and a creative sense, who loved to work with her hands. One man gazed longingly at the silver belt buckles and charms, but didn't buy — denying himself little luxuries by habit.

No wonder the owner looked young in spite of his gray hairs. His greatest satisfaction is not in the dollars and cents that pile up in his till. It comes from watching the people who browse through his shop.

News In Canyon 25 Years Ago

(Taken from the files of The Canyon News of March 12, 1931.)

Cooperating with dairymen and farmers, the Chamber of Commerce canvassed Canyon grocers and got them to agree to "rout oleomargarine and other butter substitutes from Canyon and Randall County." The grocers all agreed to discontinue sales of butter substitutes after present stocks were sold.

The state Senate finance committee recommended a $125,000 grant for a library-museum at West Texas State. The grant was to be matched by $25,000 to be raised by the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society.

Ford cars were advertised at costs ranging from $430 to $630.

Six members and two guests attended the meeting of the Loyal Dozen Club. Those present were Mrs. V. L. Briscoe, Mrs. C. C. Morton, Mrs. W. T. Simmons, Mrs. Felix Pierce, Mrs. P. L. Haynes, Mrs. Lee Johnson, a Mrs. Gray of Silverton and Mrs. S. L. Rushing of Floydada.

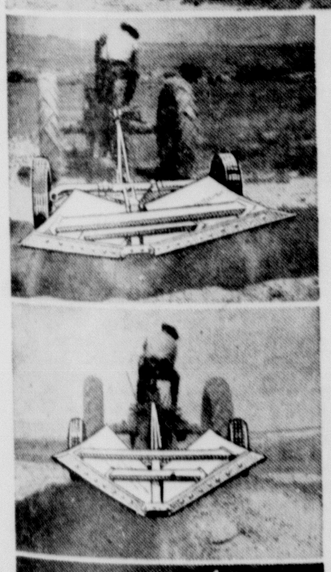
Eversman MODERN, RUBBER MOUNTED FLOATING-HITCH DITCHER



"Finest Ditcher Ever Built!"
Says John Bradley

I have found my Eversman Ditcher one of the finest I have ever used. The wide, clean ditch it makes carries plenty of water. I like the feature of having a one-man ditcher. I like the way it transports, no lifting or loading. I get away from a lot of shoveling by being able to back the ditcher into another ditch and pull away. The water follows.

By removing the ditcher blades and putting on an Eversman subsoiler I have deep-chiseled 50 acres. This was a lot cheaper than buying a separate sub-soiler chisel. I pulled it at a depth of about 18" with ease with my three-plow tractor.

Hobbies are a good pastime for young and old and they often provide physical and mental refreshment, a fact which many people in Canyon have discovered.

Phillip Pennington, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Pennington, was encouraged by Mary Moss Richardson to take up the hobby of stamp collecting when he was six years old and he has maintained an interest in that hobby to his present age of 12.

During this time he has collected over 2,000 stamps, 1,333 of which have been bound into three albums. (He gave about 900 away to a friend.) He has collected stamps from 80 different countries, 79 of these are foreign countries. All of the 48 states are represented in his collection.

Once Phil traded stamps with a man in France and gained many foreign stamps that way. He also trades with friends and buys some stamps.

Some stamps are valuable, a lesson which experience taught Phil the hard way. Once on a windy day, Phil and a friend were bicycling with Phil holding some stamps. An unexpected tumble threw the boys to the pavement, and the stamps to the four winds. One of those stamps was worth $84. Phil said, "I didn't know it at the time, but when I found out later I really felt bad about losing that stamp."

Stamp collecting isn't Phil's only hobby, but he also collects coins. He said he believed the oldest coin in his collection was one dated 1868. Phil likes sports, especially baseball, football and basketball. He also finds making model airplanes a good pastime.

About the time Phil became interested in stamps, he also became curious about these jumping creatures known as grasshoppers and would bring them home by the dozen. "Big ones, little ones, and squashy ones," Phil says.

Courses in school which Phil likes are math, history and, of course, physical education.

What are you going to be when you are older is a question that will nearly always produce a tongue in cheek, raised eyebrows and eyes toward the ceiling expression in young boys. Tongue in cheek, Phil thought for a moment and said that perhaps what he wanted to do was too hard, but he "wanted to be an atomic scientist." And then in quick succession, "Or maybe a professional football player or a government hunter. Oh, I don't know exactly."

It might pay to post a calendar of events in busy homes, at least I bet that is what the Bill Fontis are thinking.

Last Tuesday night a week ago, things were slightly scrambled, everyone was getting confused when . . . but let me tell you the story.

Bill's Sunday School class planned to have a domino party at his house. Well, Mrs. Fonti told the gals in her Sunday School class the same thing. Confident in their plans they both went right along oblivious of the fact that the other had plans that would run interference. That is until a few hours before the scheduled time of the parties when they discovered the catastrophe that was about to occur.

Mrs. Fonti won out, Bill got on the phone set the dial spinning and said, "Hey, fellows, you know that party we were going to have tonight . . ." Better luck next time.

A startling discovery! The adverb for one is only.

A friend and I were talking the other day about the furnishings in homes now days, discussing the pro's and con's for modern, contemporary and traditional furniture. She mentioned the fact that the idea of combining the three types of furniture is coming into prominence.

How about it? What do you think about combining the three? Good idea or not?

It certainly seems practical. If you have contemporary or traditional furnishings and are developing a yen for the modern touch, the propriety of combining the types would solve a big problem. Who wants to throw out or go through the process of selling furniture which you perhaps have affection and sentimentality for?

But then there's the effect the combination would give. I for one am rather skittish about a furniture alliance. To sit in a modern, square, flat chair, in front of a coffee table with wrought iron legs, and read from the light of a contemporary lamp with lace, ornate gilt or what have you just doesn't settle. Like some food though, the looks may be horrible, but the taste not so bad.

Saw Bettie Graham in The News office Saturday. Seems she took a few days away from Baylor University life to see the folks.

I also hear Harold Slack was home from Baylor and visiting his parents.

It was a busy day last Monday for Mrs. Jones. Up early she had rushed madly around the kitchen, prepared breakfast, got the kids off to school, with a hasty pat of the head, or "Johnny, did you get all your books?" had given hubby a peck on the cheek while balancing the coffee pot in one hand and dishes in the other, had finished the housework with a light, rapid touch, had run by the bank for a few sheckels in the pocket, had picked up Mrs. Terry and the two were on their way to the big city.

Mrs. Jones, or Mary, managed to relax on the way up. Traffic wasn't so bad on the highway, and chatting with Mrs. Terry, or Jerry, she was relaxed and gay by the time they were in the "big city limits." Traffic was more dense by this time and got more dense on the way to the center of town, but that was to be expected for it was the usual.

"Jerry, where did you want to go?" asks Mary. "Oh, Penney's first and then Lucille's to begin with," she answers. "All right," Mary says, "I'll drive around and find a place to park. No use trying to park on Polk, but somewhere near maybe."

They tried Fedway's parking lot. Full. Too bad. They try circling around and making an attempt to just flat rout somebody out of a parking place. No luck. Too bad.

After awhile, Mary parked on Tyler. "Well, Jerry, it's not too far to Polk. These blocks will be good for the figure, and besides I feel fine, no foot ache or anything," says Mary, and they're off.

Thirty minutes go by and the girls are in Penney's. "Oh, Mary, if I leave now, I never will get through buying this material," Jerry says. "Would you be so kind as to run back and put a nickel in the parking meter. My, how time does fly!"

This little trotting to the parking meter went on all morning. In fact, by noon it had become a ritual. Two hours had gone by and that parking meter had gulped up 20 cents.

"Well, Mary, how does it feel to be walking the blocks to the parking meter and then back to town? You needn't look so coldly at me. My feet hurt too."

On the way back home, the little bubble of enthusiasm that the girls had felt in the morning was burst, and nothing but throbbing feet and edgy nerves were left. And what was the first thing Mary and Jerry said at the dinner table that night? Listen in.

"Phooey on the switch from one hour parking for a nickel to 30 minute parking for a nickel on Polk, Tyler and Taylor. There's a parking problem I admit and cutting the parking time might get people to give up more parking places and of course there are the parking lots. But what if you can't find a parking lot. You walk, that's what. Phooey."

Remember the time you lost or thought you lost your senior ring? Rather sick feeling as I recall. But it does happen quite often and it has happened to one of the boys working in The Canyon News, Don Duncan.

He's searched high and low and the ring is not to be found it seems. He's still looking though and hoping that it will turn up. So if you see Don's ring, give him a ring, and save the nerves of a frustrated searcher.
